

Arazi Lubis
Jr. Business Analyst

Arazi Lubis provides assistance with the financial support services on behalf of LMH Strategies. His work at LMH Strategies consists of project revenue modeling, accounting, and analyzing potential client data through research, interviewing, and data modeling.

Throughout his academic career, Arazi was heavily involved with governing his student body. He was his class treasurer and went on becoming his class vice president his senior year of high school. During these positions, Arazi was involved in raising money for several charitable organizations. He was also part of the National Honors Society and took part in handling the main financial works within the organization. In college, Arazi is part of the rowing team and is the team's treasurer where his skills as treasurer include but are not limited to maintaining the annual budget, overseeing all purchases, and providing any ad hoc advice on any financial actions proposed by the team.

Arazi will bring his skills to LMH Strategies from the positions he has held prior to his employment with the firm. He hopes to bring these skills to the finance and accounting department at LMH Strategies and hopes to gain more valuable financial skills while working there this summer.

Arazi is a rising third year student at The Pennsylvania State University where he is earning a B.S. in Economics with a concentration in mathematics. When Arazi is not living in State College, PA during the school year, he resides in Silver Spring, MD where he enjoys playing the piano as well as playing a round of golf with his family.